We Dedicate...

DR. W. J. THOMAS

To Dr. William J. Thomas, journalist, teacher, "gentleman" golfer, and above all, a friend of the student, we dedicate the 1948 ARGO. To an individualist not afraid to move differently from the crowd, to one self-called "tired liberal" who has taken an active part in politics, legislature, radio broadcasting, newspaper work, and teaching, to a thoughtful and encouraging prof, allaying senior fears about comps, giving advice to news reporters, and tossing hints to future teachers about discipline problems—to Dr. Thomas the class of '48 pays tribute.

1943 and the class of forty-seven, almost entirely female, came to campus. We saw room walls decorated with French scarves, Hawaiian skirts and leis, and "Back Home for Keeps" pictures; saw Jorgy towering his 6'8½" over opponents on the basketball floor. We awoke to "Gee, Mom, I Want To Go Home" rendered by Army voices at 6:30 a. m., listened to their classic joke about dropping a pencil in class and missing a semester, and spent Saturday night at the Service center. We remember the interfrat dance held at the Kap house with room to spare.

1944 and Chapel oral dance announcements still ended, "Girls, bring your favorite roommate." The Canaries, seventeen strong, vigorously sang their theme song in the Grill, fish buying and the Chris Wagner handshake were the current vogues, and the Akron game left us weak from shouting.

1945 and "Aiken's garden bloomed again." We began our 300 courses and took our work more seriously. We worked on the Holcad, joined honaries, and published the Argo. Block W resumed their annual formal, the fraternities moved back into their houses, and the first spring football practice since the war, was scheduled.

1946 found us viewing the quadrangle for our final year. We saw the campus changed with veterans barracks, baby-buggies, and commuters' cars. We worried about comps and thesis, and burned the midnight oil over student teaching. Our caps and gowns made us proud, a little sentimental, too. We've had four years of work and fun—we won't forget them.

We've passed the half way mark. The goal is getting closer and the frosh starting line seems miles away—but does it? Wasn't it just the other day that we started our race, a little green, meeting the new roommate, saying "Howdy-doody" as we tipped our dinks, taking placement tests, and feeling a little frightened as we wondered if we'd be able to keep pace with the upper classmen? We chose Jan Carlson as Ideal Freshman Girl, and Bob O'Melia prexied the class. That was the year of the mock convention with its campaign speeches and placards in Chapel, and the big snow that almost kept us in New Wilmington for Christmas vacation.

Next September found us sauntering around campus with a more knowing air. We looked forward to tribunal. We still listened to the usual reminiscing, "when the fellows were here," bought Johnny Mercer's "Personality," and cheered frantically at the Akron game.

This year we found our chapel seats in the junior balcony. We've stopped writing letters c/o Post Office, New York and welcomed our returning classmates. Frat parties, formals, football and basketball games put up a stiff competition to studying. We elected Joe DeMoise president, and had more than our share of winners in student government, on the basketball team, and in the Little Theater. In April we paid tribute to the Seniors at the Junior Prom. And later Betty Holt was crowned May Queen. The goal is getting nearer, and we'd like to slow down. We'd rather run the race at Westminster than watch from the sidelines.

Secretarial Science

ROBERT F. GALBREATH

The secretarial science office on the third floor of Old Main is always a buzz of activity. However, its three occupants are never too busy to help some bewildered student run the mimeograph or talk over schedule problems. Mr. Robert F. Galbreath, Jr., B. B. A., A. M., heads the department and helps make business English, bookkeeping, office management, and business arithmetic interesting.

Mr. Harvey Mercer, B. B. A., M. E., is a Westminster graduate and a veteran. Mr. Mercer teaches typing techniques, shorthand skills, and salesmanship.

Miss Arlene Risher, A. B., M. E., has the job of "pulling" 120 words a minute from shorthand writers, and teaching the intricacies of the office practice machines.

CAPTAIN McKEE

JOHN CREIGHTON, WOODROW ANDERSON

First, we meet Mr. McKee, "Cappie" as tradition rules, the Department Chairman. A graduate of the Harvard Business School, Mr. McKee is a firm believer in applying theory by practical experience. Dr. Creighton, our Economist and lecturer on the Far East, proves to us that understanding human nature is a prerequisite to solving the world's economic problems. Coming from Duke University and three years of Naval Service is Mr. Anderson. This is the man who so skillfully led us through mazes of worksheets and Stat tables to find Net Profits.

Mr. Harry Manley heads the department of Political Science and Public Administration, and during second semester he was the only professor in that department.

STEWART SCHRACK

BLANCHE CARRIER

New faculty members greeted psychology students when they returned to school this fall. Dr. Blanche Carrier, formerly of Columbia, was named to head the department. Assisting Dr. Carrier in teaching aspiring psychologists is Stewart Schrack.

Dr. Carrier teaches classes in General Psychology, Educational Psychology and Abnormal Psychology. Mr. Schrack, A. B., M. Ed., heads the sections of Applied Psychology, Pre-Clinical Psychology, and Adolescent and Child Psychology.

Elmer Delancey and Stanley Krause instructed psychology classes during the first semester.

Organized only last October, and already very active on campus is the Psychology Club, open to all psychology majors. Under the sponsorship of Dr. Carrier, the club meets every month, and often has special speakers on various aspects of psychology. Field trips, psych. movies and social activities are included in its program.

Officers: president, Richard Newton; vice president, Jean Billingsley; secretary, Margaret McClure; treasurer, Grace Kees; publicity, Mary Meyers; social secretary, Polly Cochran.

Publicity originating from the "hub of the wheel" Westminster's News Bureau goes throughout the tri-state area. Backed by Dr. William J. Thomas, head of the journalism department and director of the Bureau, Westminster's publicity ranks among the highest in the state.

Journalism majors lay claim to the department with the most atmosphere. However, this "atmosphere" has been changed from the state of cluttered disorder to the well-known file system since Miss Elizabeth Nixon, assistant journalism professor, came to the department and added the feminine touch.

SOPHOMORE CUBS

Argo

In adding a few coals to the ARGO fire, we have a complete dummy, confusing picture schedules, thirty pages of sports' dummy with ten pages of copy, "editors" by the score, "grossly underpaid" photographers signing "30" to their work in December, plans for colored plates censored, and other headaches too numerous to mention.

In spite of all this we have memories—appointment thrills, the Chicago convention, engraver's good-natured patience, and our ARGO keys. Skip and Tom have always been there when we needed them. And last but not least those who had no staff appointments but pulled us through in the end.

Your memories will include—your first glimpse of the '48 ARGO (in its bright Christmas wrapping,) and years later, as you dig it from beneath old letters tied with blue and baby's first shoes, your '48 ARGO will again bring you college memories.

Holcad

At the crossroads of Route 41 is ye olde Holcad office—to whence on Wednesday nights come radio studio fans, those detouring to Kildare Reid's office, and fine art music room lovers. Such are the reasons for loyal holcader Jim Oravetz posting signs on the door all year to keep out non-journalist intruders.

The coke-spattered wall 'neath the window is only due to those, who minus a bottle opener, opened cokes on the window hinge. Editor Grace reminds us, however, that the many all-American awards now decorating the office, are good "cover-ups".

Holcadors don't acknowledge Wednesday night campus dates. Anywhere from seven to midnight, the staff feverishly bangs on typewriters, keeps the phone line busy and every other remark is punctuated with, "How do you spell A Capella"?

To Marty Kilgore—"life is a pwob'em". Patiently at ten each Wednesday night, she calls the delinquent fraternities who forget to turn in their society column news. Zech, forever behind the times, at 10:30 reports all sport news is being hi-lighted Thursday.

Round about nine, a coin is tossed and somebody trots up town for cheesits and cokes, while efficient Kay Roedema still edits copy, and Jane Moore goes into raptures over her "Titan Tattletale".

Trying to write a feature with so much hub-bub, waiting in line for a typewriter, and co-eds working against time is just part of the race. The last stretch finds the staff at the Globe, with a race to the finish. With another all-American Holcad in front of them, Holcadors, with a nose for news already begin to wonder what news is in the making for next week.

Pi Delta Epsilon, national journalism fraternity, under the leadership of Jo Cochran published "The Yearling", freshman handbook and "dope sheets" for the football and basketball games. This year the Pi Delts also sponsored the annual publications dinner; and conducted a journalism day in the spring to promote interest of high school students in the field of journalism.

Organized at Westminster in 1934, Pi Delta Epsilon has as its purpose the promotion of greater interest in the field of journalism and the advising of student working on campus publications. Requirements for entrance into Pi Delt are two years work on one of the three campus publications and experience of an editorship or business executive position at the end of the period. Officers included Jo Cochran, president; Claire Quigley, vice president; Marjorie Boles, secretary; Evelyn Hill, treasurer.

Intercollegiate debates were resumed for the first time since the war. Groups in public discussion were introduced along with special speech assembly for speech majors and freshman classes of the required courses in fundamentals of speech.

"Over 21", "Mikado", "The Little Foxes", "Moon on the Bog", and one-act plays were the plays produced this year. Weekly radio broadcasts were sent out from our campus studio over WPIC, Sharon.

Adjoining the costume room and Little Theatre is Room 110, the "Grand Central Station" of the dramatic and speech departments. Head of this field is Dr. Albert T. Cordray, chairman of Fine Arts division and director of Little Theatre, who has been on sabbatical leave. Donald L. Barbe, who has been acting as head of the dramatic department during Dr. Cordray's absence, is associate professor of speech, associate director of Little Theatre, and director of the High School Speech institute.

Assistant professors of speech are Helen V. Cushman, director of WRW and costume mistress of Little Theatre; Melvin Moorhouse, debate coach; Paul Gamble, instructor in speech and special radio classes and program director of WPIC, Sharon radio broadcasting station; and Jean Hollinsworth, instructor, who directed the Masquer's play "The Little Foxes".

OVER 21

Tau Kappa Alpha

After being inactive for five years, Tau Kappa Alpha, national honorary debate fraternity, was reinstated at Westminster. Requirements for eligibility are participation in ten debates of which four must be won. Every Monday night the debaters meet to discuss their speeches and plan for debates with other colleges. This year, their theme was, "Labor should have a direct share in management." In March seven of the debaters attended the Debate Congress held at Penn State.

Officers: John Kerensky, President; Lou Cummings, Secretary; Pat Hadley, Treasurer.

Masquers

Masquers, the honorary dramatic fraternity, was organized for the purpose of encouraging dramatic ideals. Earning points by working on Little Theatre productions is the qualification needed for membership. "Oscars" are awarded by Masquers to the best actor and actress of the year who are chosen by a faculty committee. A Masquers' plaque is also awarded to the best dramatic worker of the year. Theatre parties, an informal gathering for freshman speech majors at the woodpile, an all college party, and a formal initiation dinner in the spring at the Tavern constituted this season's activities. During the second semester they produced the three act play "The Little Foxes".

Officers are: President, Karl Moll; vice-president, Emmett D'Ambroiso; Secretary, Nancy Lewis; treasurer, James Oravetz.

Radio Workshop

An announcer proclaims, "The Westminster Hour", the traditional "Tell Me Why" follows and another of the weekly campus broadcasts begins. In its second year of operation, the campus studio, under the direction of Mr. Donald L. Barbe, broadcasts over a WPIC line from Sharon.

This year, Mr. Barbe's radio drama class has again produced plays such as "Beauty and the Beast", "Man in the Iron Mask" and "Snow-white and Rose Red." Several students, including Bruce Catt and Janet Keller wrote and produced original radio skits. Sororities and fraternities provided part of the year's entertainment, with the mixed quartet consisting of Ed Good, Bill McClellan, Jean Meyers and Audrey Duerr ready to entertain any time.

WRW club, under the direction of Miss Helen Cushman, organized under its prexy, Karl Moll, and secretary Amelia Duff, both of whom divided their time between Little Theatre and Radio Workshop. With a new program chairman each week, the club's activities were varied and ranged from producing "Jack and the Beanstalk" over WPIC to entertaining the club with local talent variety show. The purpose of this club is to give experience in participation of various types of programs.

Improvements this year consisted of new turntables and new records. Tentative plans for next year include a separate honorary organization for active WRW workers.

Art . . .

JOSEPH SHERIDAN

The Art Department resumes under the directorship of Mr. Harold Brennen, returning after serving two years in the United States Army in France. Mr. Joseph Sheridan, assistant professor, is directing all of the studio classes on the third floor of the Science Hall.

Illustrations in Scrawl, student literary publication, are one of the projects undertaken by art students. In May, the annual exhibit is held in the exhibition room to which each art student must contribute at least one piece of work.

Language . . .

WALTER BIBERICH

T. R. WILEY

MARY ELIZABETH STEWART

Habla-vous die deutsch combines all three lingos of Westminster's language department. En Espanol, students have great fun deciphering Mr. Wiley's expert native-like Spanish diction. In le clase francais, Miss Stewart keeps her pupils alert with vivid stories of French history along with fundamentals of grammar. In die deutsch, nobody registers for Mr. Biberich's class unless he truly enjoys singing. Caesar and Cicero fans are interested in Dr. Taylor's unique historical descriptions.

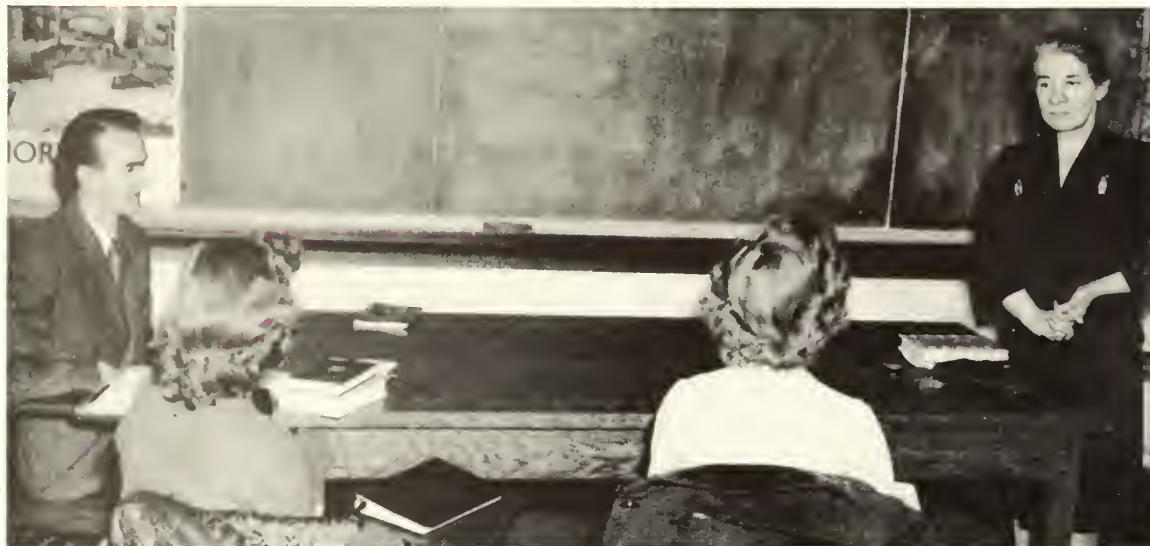

Miss Mary Elizabeth Stewart, A. B., heads the department, with Professors Walter Biberich and T. R. Wiley assisting.

Dr. Gilbert H. Taylor, chairman of the department of ancient languages, teaches both the language and the histories of Greece and Rome. He has been at Westminster since 1925 as professor of languages and head of the department. Dr. Taylor's favorite recreation is still the "auto."

Keeping in tempo with the "crowding" theme of the campus, the English department guided by Dr. Mary Purdy, A. B., A. M., Ph.D., made room for more desks as its staff almost doubled. Associate professors James V. Baker, A. B., A. M., and Dr. Virginia T. Everett, A. B., A. M., Ph.D., were on leave of absence.

Joining the staff was Dr. Myrta E. McGinnis, A. B., A. M., Ph. D., who soon became known to the Scrawl staff as one of their advisors. George Bleasby, A. B., A. M., and Miss Mary C. McConagha, A. B., A. M., assistant professor emeritus of English, soon found themselves in the same office with bowls of pretzels and peanuts, traditional mark of the department.

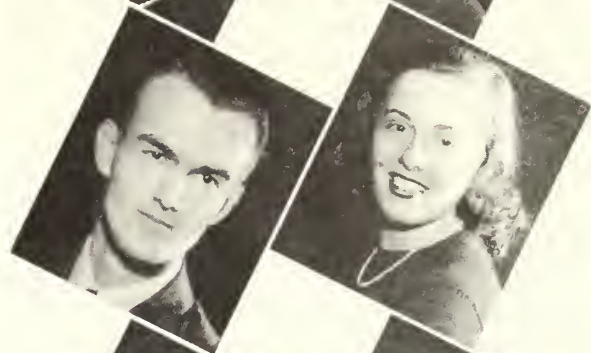

Well known to freshmen students are Miss Martha Barnhill, A. B., A. M., John H. Forry, B. S., A. M., and Mrs. Ann Shane Jones, A. B., A. M., instructors in English. Misses Amy Charles, A. B., A. M., and Maxine Gilliland, A. B., A. M., both Westminster graduates, joined the staff of instructors. Miss Jane Bryan, A. B., instructed part-time in English.

One of the numerous changes that took place in the college curriculum this year was the division of the psychology-education section into two departments. Counsellor to teaching majors and chairman of the education department is E. C. Shortt, A. B., A. M., Ed. Mr. Shortt is new to the college and came here this fall after working on his doctorate at Harvard. The professor instructs classes in secondary education and also supervises student teaching in secondary schools. Assisting future teachers are Miss Beulah Campbell, A. B. and Reed Groniger. Both instructors have been added to the department this year. Miss Campbell directs students in elementary education courses, such as the teaching of reading, social studies, and science in grammar schools. She also heads student teaching in the elementary schools. Mr. Groniger, A. B., M. S., assists in teaching students in secondary education courses as well as instructing a social science class.

"A DOG'S LIFE"

"Jake," the prize spotted pupil of the campus came out on top with no white cards and—no grades. But, he had fun, even if he didn't become an alum. Jake looked so sad and serious in his horn-rimmed glasses, padding through the halls. Especially when he was late for a class and had to bark to his pals inside to unlock the door. If and when he gained admission, he jogged to the back of the room and thumped a long, not very well-bred tail in rhythm to the prof's lecture until he dozed off. "A dog's life," maybe, but Jake liked it.

JEAN JOHNSON

ROBERT JOHNSON

We've seen some changes on the campus since our green Frosh days way back last year. We were the largest class Westminster had ever seen, but although some of us were returned veterans, the women still outnumbered us 2-1. Now we relinquish the title of largest, and welcome the hordes of men who again saunter across the Quadrangle and congregate on the Grille steps. Larger classes, new faces behind the prof's desk, even a new president—it was a new Westminster to which the class of 1949 returned last October.

We've changed, too. We've grown with Westminster into a definitely post-war Sophomore class. With no more gripes about one hour courses and 8:30 permissions, we've settled to working off required courses and spending lovely Friday afternoons in the lab, planning frat and sorority parties, admiring the beauties of nature uptown. And extra-curricular campus activities have received a good shade of our attention. A check of the members of music groups, publications, Little Theatre, and other student organizations upholds well the Sophomores' reputation of being active. There's our own high-scoring basketball, Chet Dembinski, who helps make those nights in the crowded gym so thrilling.

Our music major, Ed Good, took one of the leading roles in the "Mikado".

Representing us in student government are Elizabeth Cummings and Jean Johnson on Senate; Bob Johnson, Skip Davis, and Claire McClure on Student Council. Bob Johnson also leads the class, with Russ Herrscher, vice president and Jean Johnson, secretary.

With almost two years of college life safely behind us, we cross our fingers and look hopefully forward to the day we become mighty Juniors.

'50 . . .

Freshmen

The class of 1950—the largest freshman class in Westminster's history. We came, we saw, and we reversed the ratio 3-1, men predominating. We arrived on campus in October—some of us commuters, some listed as emergency students, the majority as residents—but all eagerly awaiting college life. Some of us lived army style in the gym at first, but gradually moved into the newly-erected barracks, reminiscent of our soldiering days.

We started our frosh days by waiting in lines—lines for registration, eating, movies, and even lines for classes. But we quelled our gripes and settled into the college routine. Who's Who parties, dances, and football games kept up rushed the first few weeks, and our first big thrill came with the arrival of the "Duke" and the "Dance of the Year." We experienced new changes. The large enrollment necessitated 12:50 classes, double lunch periods at Browne Hall and even seven o'clock labs. Turning our thoughts to student government, we elected Ann Harding, Tom Murphy, and "Duff" Brown to Student Council, while Judy Wilkinson and Emma Klein took their places on Senate. Jack Boardman presided over class, with Ann Hepler, Peggy Adams, and Lois Matthews, serving as vice-president, secretary, and treasurer, respectively. Florrie Johnson, Alyce Ann Eppley, Judy Wilkinson, Jim Fudge, and Ed Taylor enacted leading roles in the Little Theatre production, "The Mikado." Music major Emma Klein was an attractive "Ideal Frosh," upsetting the eight-year reign the secretarial science majors' held on the title. Following Christmas vacation, frat and sorority rushing filled our days, and soon many of us were wearing the pledge pin of our Greek organization. Not to be outdone by the upperclassmen, freshmen faces cropped into the football, basketball, track, soccer, and swimming teams. Second semester found us sponsoring our first social event, "Cupid's Bow Dance," on Valentine's Day at College Hall. We passed one semester, spring came and we were rapidly becoming veterans at Westminster.

Twenty simultaneous splashes as the Mermaids execute a formation dive from the edge of the pool,—shouts and team yells as the Chi O's and the T U's play for the inter-sorority basketball cup,—counts of 1-2-3-4 as the boys' gym classes do setting-up exercises,—the gym is always a noisy place.

Heading the physical education department is "Coach" Grover C. Washabaugh, B. S.

Women's athletics are directed by Donna Mae Sheridan, A. B. Besides the regular gym and swimming classes for freshmen and sophomore women, there are W. A. A. inter-sorority games in volleyball and basketball, and Mermaids for ambitious swimmers. Helen Sittig, R. N., B. S., M. S., teaches the hygiene classes for freshmen women.

Men's athletics are directed by Melvin Hetzler, B. S., with Harold E. Burry, B. B. A., M. E., teaching the men's swimming classes.

Some new, some old, all combined to give the the Blue and White gridders what turned out to be an unusual, as well as successful season. The one loss marks the successful segment, the four ties (two at the season's beginning and two at its end) got the Titans into the oddity columns, and the three wins went along for the trip. On the good side, Hetzler's charges allowed only 39 points, but they only tallied 45. Seemingly the attack bogged down on the other side of the scrimmage line for Westminster. When the season opened, Hetzler found himself with a wealth of tackles, guards, and centers. The ends offered a problem after several injuries, and the backfield never reached a settled state.

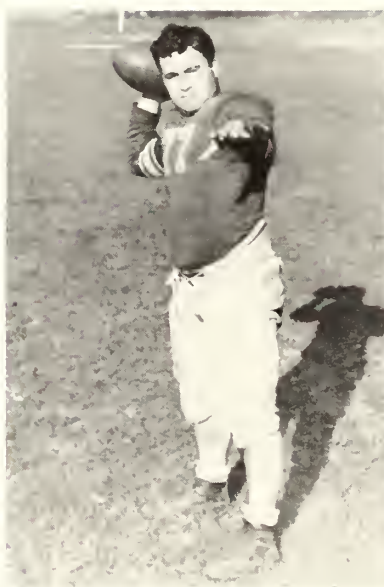

But the entire season was more than a small success. It marked the first year since '42 that the Titans fielded a team and it promised better things to come.

Big Five . . .

DICK DOWNING, Manager

Coach Washabaugh greeted some eighty eager candidates in mid-October, six of whom were lettermen from the previous season's varsity—Bill McLhinney, Don Heddlestone, Chester Dembinski, Fred Paine, Tom Jones, and Dean Nelson. Added to this number were a score of former Titan squad members and an even dozen classy high school performers.

Once the pre-season practice drills gave way to practice games, the veterans proved their mettle, and the first five looked quite similar to last year's team. Not the tallest team Westminster ever fielded, Washabaugh could point to the back court for his height, while McLhinney and Heddlestone made up for their size in speed and ball handling.

Over the season the Titans scored a grand total of 1618 points to their opponents 1289. Averaging 64.5 per contest to 51.5, "Pappy's" cagers were able to ring up one of the finest records in the school's history. Only the exceedingly high class shown by Duquesne and West Virginia shaded the Titans. Their 21 victories in 25 starts placed them third in the district standings.

Basketball Dribble . . .

Oddly enough the Titans lost their opener as a result of winning the practice game. Tom Jones suffered an ankle injury as the Blue Wave was smothering a weak St. Vincent team 79-46.

The Eastern swing got off to a good start with Jones in civies. Freshman Bruce Wagner filled in capably and Dick Fuhrer proved his worth. Amidst it all Westminster toppled Millersville at Philadelphia 64-43. It was a taste of something different two nights later and a great City College team literally ran the Titans into the floor. CCNY triumphed 74-48 before more than 18,000 spectators in Madison Square Garden.

As if the loss wasn't enough, everyone concerned developed ptomaine poisoning on the trip home.

It was back to the right side of the ledger on the next three outings. The Blue and White fattened the point average against Bethany, Juniata, and Gannon.

Every season has its thrillers, and the Titans provided 6,000 Pittsburghers with just that. Harvard came west with a highly publicized squad. Don Hedleston sent home the tying basket as the timer raised his gun. The extra canto was a duplicate of the see-saw game with Harvard winning 64-62.

Bill McLhinney made life miserable for Geneva on the Titan court. Bill threw 20 points in the first half including eight shots from near mid-floor. The Covies never recovered from the one-man attack. It was Westminster 76-53.

St. Vincent and Gannon were added to the growing list for a second time 69-32 and 92-56 respectively. The latter was the highest score of the year with every member contributing to the total.

"Pappy" took the boys to Pittsburgh for a meeting with the Panthers. As usual it was a night of excitement. The Titans had safely stowed the win 54-45, Dr. Thomas closed the camera, then the minor riot broke out.

With high scoring Chester Dembinski dropping in points pretty much as he pleased the Titans twice trimmed Waynesburg, added Bethany, Slippery Rock, Juniata, and Thiel. The Yellow Jackets from Waynesburg provided a minor scare; the United Presbyterians eased through 58-55. Otherwise it was "just a breeze."

Letting the basketball world know they were still to be contended with, the cagers astounded everyone but the home folks in dropping a highly touted W-J team 65-54. A newcomer, Don McCullough, got his first taste of action, and it was a pleasing preview.

Back in the national limelight, Westminster took Carnegie Tech to camp, then went after the Slippery Rock Rockets. "Chink" Ditkin had the lead role throwing in impossible hook shots, but McCullough continued to add luster to the shine and the Titans made it 13 in a row 53-49.

The big bad Pitt Panthers spoiled everything. With Westminster giving an exhibition on how to play basketball the smaller Pitts worked the figure eight to near perfection in winning 44-39. Little Nate Apple rounded out four years of activity against Westminster with a brilliant floor game.

"Tall Chester" did it again against an inexperienced Thiel team, accounting for 29 of the Titans 81 points. It was the tops in individual point-making for the season. The Scots from Carnegie Tech had no success in their second attempt either. Westminster winning 68-54.

Tournament talk persisted on the Titan campus, but Washington and Jefferson failed to read the publicity notices. Ted Osso had a field day to the tune of 28 points and the Prexies cooled the hot Titans off 65-47.

It ended one of the best Westminster seasons ever on the wrong note. But Titan followers could look to next year when ten lettermen would return for another crack at the Pitts, Prexies, and Gothamites.

With Westminster's return to intercollegiate football, Block W also returned to pre-war status. Organized in 1936 the club which is composed of twenty-one football and basketball varsity lettermen encourages and promotes intra-mural athletics on campus. This year blue and red jackets marked members as Block W men.

At the formal girl-ask-boy dance sponsored by the group in November Jean Forrest, senior commercial teaching major from Monaca, was crowned Block W queen. A corsage and the traditional blue and white sweater with the Westminster W were presented to the queen by President Joe DeMoise.

Other officers are Vice President Edward Kuseck and Secretary-Treasurer Tom Jones.

"Mysterious" we call our Victorian house with its sliding panels and hidden drawers, but there's no mystery in our memories of . . .

Dancing and weiner roasting at Mrs. Russell's (though we do wonder where that coffee got its taste) . . . Peggy Lee's drugstore-cowboy strut in our Pan-hel skit . . . wearing green dresses alike . . . rushing the rushees and listening to Mary's tempting "Temptation."

Our Tavern pledge dinner and Nancy Lee reigning as Pledge Princess at our annual "Hat Box Hop" . . . reorganizing our mothers' club—and feeding them, too . . . cheering our "honored" on Tap day . . . well-wishing our grads while dinner dancing at Shusters.

And through it all we laughed at Pat's wintry wail over the ice in her sink . . . Deets and Ann's blistering love for their gas stove . . . third floor's roof garden . . . late dozers wakening to the tune of shovels and bull-dozers in the back yard as the new rec hall takes shape . . . the daily trek to the sun bathers rendezvous . . . Jo and Lou blazing the trail to the nearby creek.

But behind it all, the hilarious and serious, there's no mystery—we're Alpha Gams!

The Beta Sigs have really kept the social calendar in a whirl. Fall found the Betas having a steak roast in their backyard; later they came out in royal blue sweaters, and then followed an open house with cards and "dagwoods." The calendar in February boasted a dinner-dance at Schusters. Next came rushing, with teas, open house, twelve dandy new pledges, and the pledging ceremony. All was not just social life. We won the Beta Sig national scholarship cup and boasted a number of Betas in honoraries. To wind up the year, the alums gave a party for us at the house, the pledges gave a party for the actives, and then May 15 the pledges went active. It was a big year for the Beta Sigma Omicron sorority.

I'm sitting on the window seat facing Senior Lodge browsing through the Chi O album for 1946 and 1947. The first picture is a vivid scene of the "gang" arriving last October 1 after a month's delay. Clothes are removed from suitcases and hung neatly in not too much cupboard space.

Upon leafing over the next few pages, M. L.'s exact precision with the flash bulb brings to mind our first house party—Phyl engrossed in an extravagant bid of six hearts—Mary Lou Terney and Josie and dates on kitchen duty—Dodie getting "hep" to the beat of Hoodie Addle.

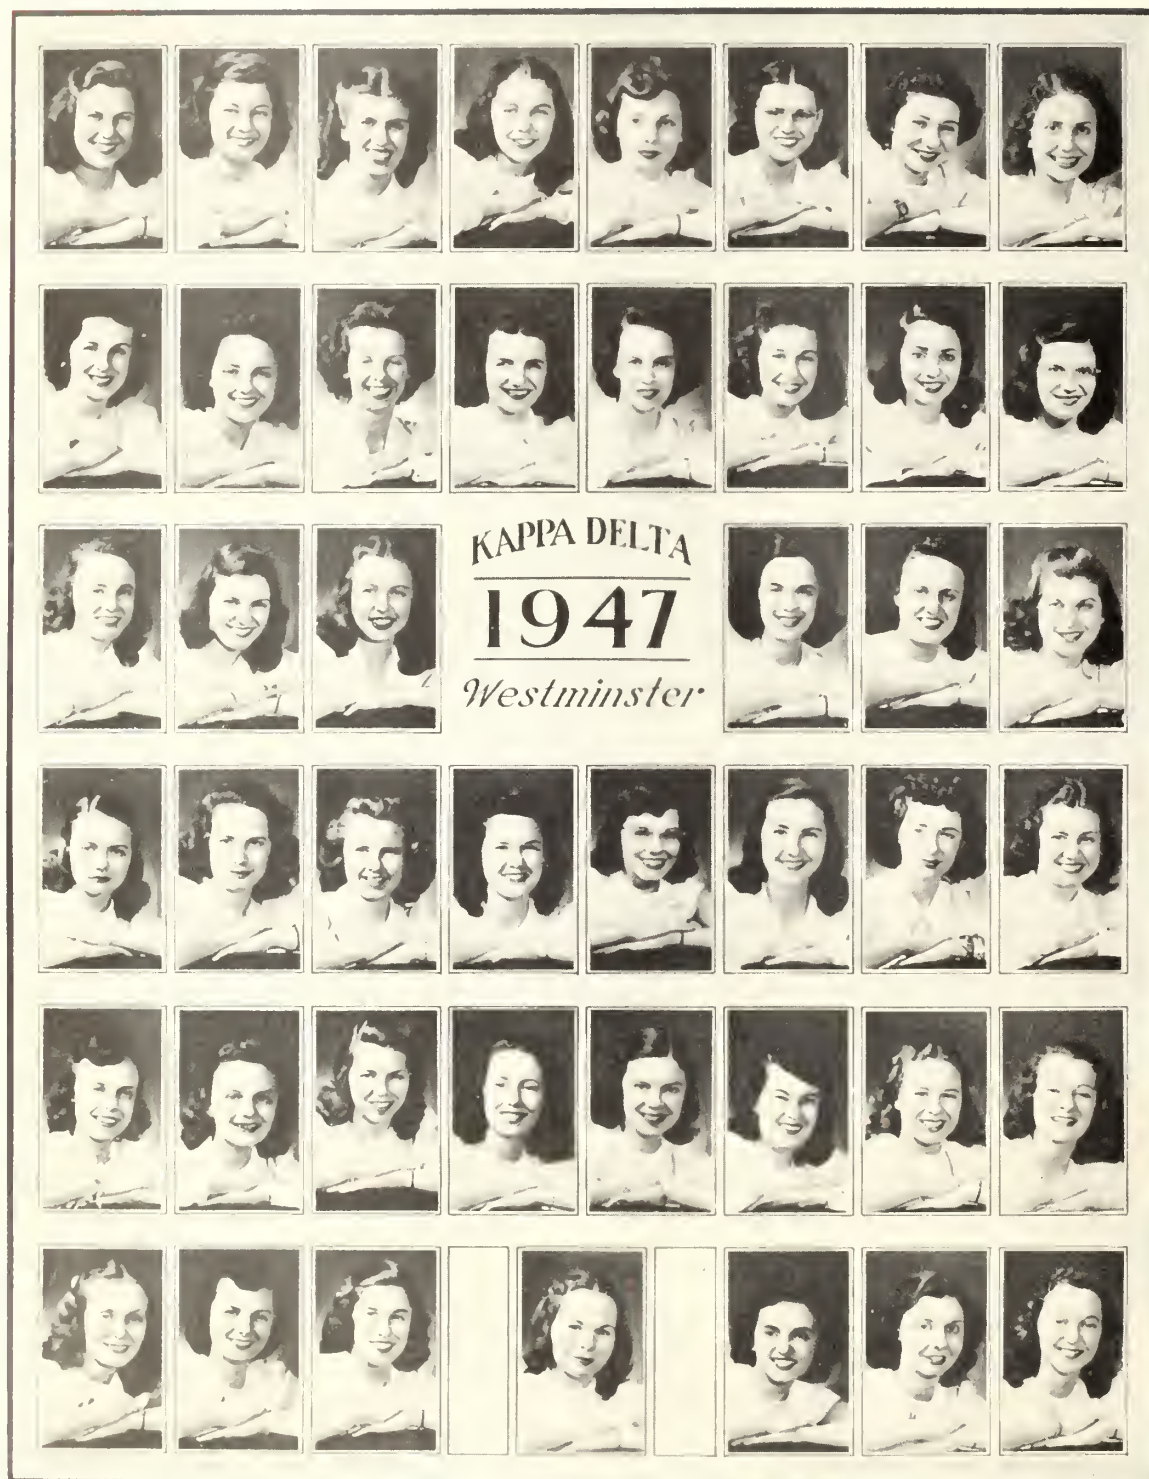

Next, the weiner roast in college woods with Stretch engineering "barbershop singing" around the campfire, and Jean Bricker pensive over the missing jar of mustard.

Page six reveals the Chi O skit for the Panhellenic Dance—Hopie and Nancy in their striped seersucker smocks—Coleman covering her face with her cardboard letter to match the others, waist-high—Minty instructing the choral group, and Margo in men's attire.

Next, single snapshots of Jean gazing dreamily at Junie's engagement ring—Smitty studying Ethics in the bathtub at three o'clock a. m.—Jane Foster's abstract brightening up "second floor back"—Jean Leighty's expert managing of the volley ball team that later won us the cup—Joye shooting the first field goal in the T. U. game—Sig Ep heart formation with Boles leaning against the post on the porch—and us missing Mary Alice already.

As I turn the pages over, pictures of rushing come into view—Maggie pondering tediously over a design for our song books—Margie's last minute search for a formal, and Mary Lou Lash admiring her new red sweater.

So long, Jean, Bolesie, and Minty! I close the album now, and look ahead to another year.

It's been a crowded, fun packed year—and the memories drift back on snatches of K. D. songs.

"When they turn the lights down low, dear, and I waltz again with you—" low lights, soft music and swirling skirts,—our Christmas formal at the Shannopin—our Spring formal at the Castleton—

"Oh, my little K. D. rushee—" the bustle and scurry of last minute preparations as we wallpapered miniature hat boxes for our rush party—

"I love the pin you let me wear—" fourteen angelic freshmen donned white crew caps with those green Greek letters—and proudly wore their Kappa Delta pledge pins—

"I'm a Kappa Delta girl, in a Kappa Delta whirl—" the whirl of classes and activities—the tavern dinners—house parties;—our pledges draped in sheets and sporting wire halos at their "Green Pastures" dance—the funny vegetable corsages at the "backwards party"—hearts and red balloons on February 14.

"I took her out last night—boy! what an appetite! she's a real Kappa Delt!—" Christmas trees, candles, and around the piano singing at Mrs. Barbe's spaghetti dinner—Steaming coffee and all the hot dogs you could eat at the Biberich's picnic.

"As I look in my garden of dreams—" strains of an echo from our radio program—The dreams of a perfect year—each song with its own memories of Kappa Delta.

Coming down Maple street, it's the first white house on the left—its face could stand to be lifted; its interior could stand to be renovated, but its inhabitants wouldn't stand for its atmosphere to be changed 'cause it's just right for Sigma Kappa living.

It's been only fourteen months since it began its existence as the Sigma Kappa House but it scarcely remembers when . . .

"Mom" wasn't greeting its dwellers' dates—a tube of toothpaste, used community style, lasted more than three days—the crank-phone didn't jangle to engage a "cradle watcher"—the ironing board's cover didn't have a burnt iron-shaped hole—the wallpaper hanger didn't spend a fortnight obscuring the hall wall with brilliant pink paper—that second floor member didn't add impetus to the fire drilling—notebooks and paper didn't share the bathtub with a late exam-crammer—the line of mouse traps wasn't checked by early morn hunters—those abiding in it ever had enough food to stave off midnight malnutrition symptoms—the chapter room housed forms, beds, and stuffed animals instead of blue and white leather furniture—the front porch wasn't almost too crowded on after-dark nights . . .

The House may not remember when, but the Sigma Kappas will remember ever—another never-to-be-forgotten year.

Interfraternity Council

Following the pattern of larger colleges and universities Interfraternity council inaugurated something new at Westminster this year . . . the Saturday afternoon tea dances at the fraternity houses, when Greeks, their dates and chaperones could get together at any of the three houses for dancing, bridge, or just a Saturday afternoon co-ed get-together. The plan, negotiated by the council through Dean Stevenson, was successful, so that now girls are becoming almost as familiar around the fraternity houses as they were during the war.

Dug out of storage and polished up for the 1946-47 term, the scholarship cup, awarded annually at Honors Convocation to the fraternity holding the highest grade average for the preceding year, made its first appearance since 1945.

Long-lost alumni were welcomed back to their respective houses, following the Pitt game at Farrell, and brothers compared war and school notes with undergraduates over a Home-coming dinner in the house dining-rooms.

The gala Interfraternity Council dance at the New Castle Field Club wound up the second successful peacetime year of college life.
